

I support the efforts of XM Satellite radio to provide important information and entertainment to those who choose to pay for the unique service. It's unfortunate that the N.A.B. feels that it is unable to provide competitive service, but getting the FCC to limit competition to allow them to avoid providing competitive service appears to be counterproductive to good radio service.

If the NAB stations would offer better service, people would listen...until they do, I will choose to listen to a superior service for which I pay extra.

XM programming is a PAY service....like HBO, SHOWTIME and STARZ are to television. It should stay free of censorship and political influence.

Thank you.
